When trouble strikes, you need a helping hand.

- ✦ Friendship
- ✦ Support
- ✦ Peace of Mind

When a death occurs, you need a friend.

WHY?

Death in a family is truly a family crisis. The responsibilities are many and may be forgotten. The details are endless and may be overlooked. The decisions are overwhelming and may be ignored. By arranging in advance for your friends to share these responsibilities and details with you, your family can feel secure and protected...

The Circle of Friends Network can help you organize your trusted friends into a support group. This group—or network—will be ready in a time of need to share the responsibilities and concerns of your family in the way you want them to.

Your network can be arranged today and informed of the assistance it may need to provide later. And you can be secure in the knowledge that your Circle of Friends Network is ready and available when needed.

HOW CAN YOUR NETWORK HELP?

Below are only some of the ways your Circle of Friends Network can help when a death or emergency occurs. Of course, your Circle of Friends Network is not asked to bear any financial responsibilities.

- + Assist with collecting and preserving family memories and tributes
- + Prepare food/meals
- + Secure/guard the home if family is absent
- + Make child care arrangements
- + Wash clothes/provide dry cleaning
- + Notify employers and schools of needed absences
- + Arrange airport pick-up for out-of-town guests
- + Prepare hotel/motel arrangements for out-of-town guests
- + Collect family documents
- + Assist with funeral home or cemetery visits if a death has occurred
